Some of the landlords of this county want a stock law. Better wait awhile, gentlemen, until you get a stockade made to hold THE MEN who stole the county money. —C. N. Walker.

As we expected. Mr. Musgrave will have to be "investigated" again. His page advertisement was absent from the columns of the Turncoat last week and he is not segregated from "THE MEN WHO STOLE" the county money. It appears now that Mr. Musgrave did not leave sufficient money laying around to keep him in good standing, or Old Walker would say "all THE MEN, except our advertiser, Mr. Musgrave." The order appears: No advertisement no "investigating."

Elmer Holt, the young man who was shot by his father-in-law, George Hutson, near Caruthersville, July 3, is getting along nicely, and will soon be well. They have made friends.

40 acres land, all cleared, good state of cultivation, two miles northwest of Concord. Two good houses and barns. Good bargain. W. F. Cook, box 45, Hayti.

To the Democratic Voters.

In announcing my candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the office of Representative of the Fourteenth Congressional District in the Sixty-third Congress, I deem it appropriate for me to make a brief statement of the motives which impel me to seek this nomination, and what I desire to accomplish in the event of my being nominated and elected.

I have long cherished the desire to represent my district in Congress, for the reason that I believed myself to be familiar with the needs of the people, and that I would be able, if elected to this position, to secure legislation that would be beneficial to the whole people.

I seriously contemplated making the race two years ago, but was dissuaded from doing so, and although I have had urgent solicitations from all portions of the district to enter the race this year, I have hesitated to declare myself a candidate, because there were already three aspirants for the position, all of whom are warm personal friends of mine, and each of whom thinks that the best interests of the district and the party would be served by awarding him the nomination. After careful consideration of the matter in all its details, it has occurred to me that in all probability if I ever make the race for this office it will be necessary for me to run against some one who is a warm friend, and I further conclude that there is no valid reason why friends may not contest for such an honor as this and conduct the contest in such a manner as to be just as good friends after the contest is over.

In this belief, I have declared my candidacy, and it is my intention to conduct my campaign with absolute fairness to all my opponents, for each of whom I have the highest personal regard, and I am resolved that so far as any act of mine is concerned, there shall be no reason, whatever may be the result of this contest, for there being any other than the friendliest of feelings between the contestants when it is over.

As stated above, I have for several weeks past been receiving almost daily solicitations to enter this race, and as the time for filing declarations drew to a close, these solicitations became too urgent to be ignored. They came from people in all professions, walks and avocations of life, but more numerous, perhaps, from business men and farmers, who called my attention to the fact that this is a great agricultural district, second, perhaps, in this respect to no other district in the whole United States, and urged that it ought to be represented by a man who is closely identified with the business and agricultural interests of the people; one, who from the very nature of his everyday life, is thoroughly familiar with the needs of the people, and thereby able to know intuitively what legislation would be for their interests.

Others have stated that there is a strong feeling among the people that there are too many lawyers and not enough farmers and business men sent to Congress; too many theorists and not enough practical, everyday men of affairs.

My attention has been called to the fact that at the present time fourteen of the sixteen congressional districts of the State of Missouri are represented in Congress by lawyers, and in the Fourteenth Congressional District, at the present time, every candidate for the Democratic nomination for Representative at the ensuing election, except myself, is a lawyer.

I wish to state, in declaring my candidacy, that I am a farmer and a business man, and have all my life, since reaching the years of manhood, been thoroughly conversant with the business, agricultural and commercial interests of the district.

I make my appeal to the whole people: To the farmer, the mechanic, the artisan, the merchant, the lumberman, the banker and the working man in all the varied industries and avocations of this great district, for with such interests, industries and labors I have been associated and identified during the whole period of my life.

If nominated and elected to this position, I shall bring to the discharge of its duties all the energy, all the industry, all the intelligence which I possess, and I promise that I will, at all times, faithfully represent all classes of people in my district and work for their interests.

It is my intention to make as thorough a canvass of the district as the time will permit, and I hope to be able to meet and become personally acquainted with every voter in the district.

ALFRED L. HARTY.

Lee Ridgway, who used to be a citizen of this city, but who now resides at Kennett, was here Thursday, seeing his many friends.

If the democratic party of Pemiscot county can win with the "secretary" of the Central Committee and the Turncoat be instigated in importing here to do his "blurring" "riding" its "back," it need never fear defeat against any obstacle that may arise in the future.

Growing--Nutty.

No country paper ever built up more rapidly than the Critic, and seldom, if ever happened, that a country paper was so strong in the affections of the people. There's a reason: it is the people's paper standing for honesty and humanity as between man and man.—Chameleon Walker.

What do you think of that as a corker?

When we were a little boy there was a yarn going the rounds of two men who wagered that they could tell the biggest lie. One said he built a ladder up to the moon and drove a nail through it. The other fellow said yes, that's so; I was on the other side of the moon and clinched the nail. Old Walker has the man who was on the other side of the moon and clinched the nail beaten to a frazzle.

He says "no country paper ever built up more rapidly than the Critic." That statement clinches the biggest lie we have heard. Why, think of it, it has been published for nearly twelve months and has not yet become a "country newspaper" nor any other kind of a "newspaper," but is merely a circular, so far as the Post Office Department is concerned. Walker applied for entry for his paper at the Hayti post office August 15, last year, and the Post Office Department has not accepted his application. No other "country paper" ever published in the United States was ever delayed that long, two weeks being all the time necessary to comply with the law, if a publisher is not so crooked he can't swear the truth. As to his business—circulation and advertising—he would not be here today a leech upon this town, except for the graft he has received. We challenge his itemized statement to show the contrary.

As to the thing he calls a newspaper being "strong in the affections of the people," that is an insult to decency. After including old Billygoat, son Arter, I. Kohn and a few of their ilk, it could be "strong in the affections" of no one who does not believe in graft and lying. The parties named, we think, lack a blamed sight of being "the people."

Local and Personal.

If it had not been for the "secretary" of the County Democratic Central Committee showing democratic candidates into the Turncoat office to be stripped of their announcement fees, the party would not now have the smut of that Old Anarchist upon its garments to make it ashamed to face decency.

For Sale Cheap—household goods, one incubator, one row boat, ducks and chickens. Also seven-room house for rent. Mrs. D. King. 34-1

Not Wise To Take Calomel.

Dodson's Liver Tonic is just as sure in results and always safe, pleasant in taste and has no bad after-effects. As a remedy for a torpid liver calomel has more than met its match in Dodson's Liver Tonic. This medicine does not roughly force the liver on to perform its work. It acts gently, but surely.

Calomel depends for its power upon exciting the liver to do more work, and often the liver is too weak to stand such treatment, and after taking calomel you are as a result sometimes worse off than before.

Dodson's Liver Tonic cannot cause any of the dangerous effects that often follow the use of calomel. It is entirely vegetable and pleasant to the taste, and is suitable for children and grown people.

Get a large bottle for fifty cents at Lefler's Drug Store under the guarantee that if it doesn't satisfy you that it perfectly takes the place of calomel you will be given your money back with a smile right at the store where you bought Dodson's medicine.
